Mining permits issued by gov, says labor group

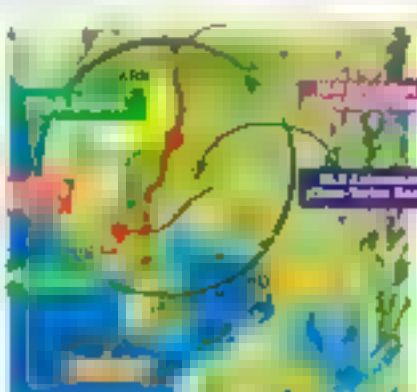

By Philip M. Berman

WASHINGTON, July 3 — The U.S. Department of the Interior has issued 10 mining permits for new or expanded operations in the western United States, a move that has drawn criticism from environmental groups and labor unions. The permits, which were issued by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), cover a total of 1,100 acres in the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, and Wyoming. The permits are for a variety of mining operations, including gold, silver, copper, and uranium. The BLM says that the permits are necessary to ensure that the federal government's mineral resources are managed in a responsible and sustainable manner. However, environmental groups and labor unions argue that the permits are being issued too quickly and without adequate public input. They say that the BLM is not doing enough to protect the environment and the interests of local communities. The permits are being issued as part of the BLM's ongoing effort to manage the federal government's mineral resources. The BLM says that it is committed to ensuring that the federal government's mineral resources are managed in a responsible and sustainable manner. However, environmental groups and labor unions argue that the permits are being issued too quickly and without adequate public input. They say that the BLM is not doing enough to protect the environment and the interests of local communities.

New growth area seen to rise as 94-km highway project links 2 former US bases

By David M. Ford

WASHINGTON, July 3 — A new highway project that will link two former U.S. military bases in the southwestern United States is expected to spur economic growth in the area. The project, which is being funded by the U.S. Department of Transportation, will create a 94-kilometer-long highway that will connect the two bases. The project is expected to create thousands of jobs and to stimulate economic growth in the area. The highway project is being funded by the U.S. Department of Transportation. The proposed 94-km highway project will link two former U.S. military bases in the southwestern United States.

Board is sworn

The board of directors of the U.S. Department of the Interior was sworn in on July 3. The board is responsible for overseeing the department's operations and for making recommendations to the secretary of the department. The board members are appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate. The board is expected to play a key role in the department's efforts to manage the federal government's mineral resources.

Plan is approved

The plan for the new highway project was approved by the U.S. Department of Transportation on July 3. The plan calls for the construction of a 94-kilometer-long highway that will connect the two former U.S. military bases. The project is expected to create thousands of jobs and to stimulate economic growth in the area. The highway project is being funded by the U.S. Department of Transportation. The project is expected to create thousands of jobs and to stimulate economic growth in the area.

Global partners

The U.S. Department of the Interior is seeking global partners for the new mining permits. The department is looking for companies that have experience in the mining industry and that are interested in developing the federal government's mineral resources. The department is expected to announce the results of its search in the coming months. The U.S. Department of the Interior is seeking global partners for the new mining permits. 2 rivals declare victory in Mexico race

MANILA, Nov. 10 (AP) — Mexican President Felipe Calderon and his rival, Andrés Manuel López Obrador, both declared victory in the Nov. 7 election, claiming to have won the presidential race. Calderon, a member of the National Action Party (PAN), said he had won with 56 percent of the vote. López Obrador, leader of the Popular Revolution Party (PRD), said he had won with 44 percent of the vote.

Calderon's victory ended a decade of rule by the PRD, which had won the 1995 and 2000 elections. The PRD's victory in 2000 ended 71 years of rule by the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI). Calderon's victory was a surprise to many observers, who had expected López Obrador to win.

López Obrador's victory would have meant a second term for the PRD, which had won the 1995 and 2000 elections. The PRD's victory in 2000 ended 71 years of rule by the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI). Calderon's victory was a surprise to many observers, who had expected López Obrador to win.

Militants give ultimatum as Israel moves on Gaza

TEL AVIV, Nov. 10 (AP) — Hamas militants in Gaza gave Israel an ultimatum to withdraw its troops from the territory by Nov. 15, or they would launch a new round of attacks. The ultimatum came as Israeli forces were moving into Gaza to disarm Hamas and remove its weapons. Hamas leaders said they would not accept the ultimatum unless Israel withdrew its troops.

Economy grew 6% in first half of 2006

Neda says exports, farm sector contributed to expansion

By Michael S. Santos

MANILA, Jan. 8 (AP) — The Philippine economy grew 6 percent in the first half of 2006, driven by a strong export sector and a recovery in the agricultural sector, the National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) said today.

NEDA said the economy grew 6.1 percent in the first half of 2006, up from 5.6 percent in the first half of 2005. The growth was driven by a strong export sector, which grew 10.1 percent, and a recovery in the agricultural sector, which grew 3.1 percent.

Peso rallies past 54 to $1

By Rene C. Reyes

MANILA, Jan. 8 (AP) — The Philippine peso rallied today, reaching a high of 54.10 against the U.S. dollar, after a period of volatility. The peso had previously fallen to a low of 53.80, but recovered after a report that the Philippine economy grew 6 percent in the first half of 2006.

The peso's rally was also helped by a report that the Philippine government will increase its foreign reserves. The government said it will increase its reserves to $10 billion by the end of 2006. This move is expected to strengthen the peso and attract foreign investment.

Emotions are messages

By David M. Reardon, author of The Emotional Body

Sometimes, when you feel a strong emotion, you are actually receiving a message from your body. The message is often a warning that something is wrong, or a signal that you need to take action.

For example, if you feel a strong emotion, such as anger or fear, it may be a sign that you are being manipulated or that you are in a dangerous situation. If you feel a strong emotion, such as love or joy, it may be a sign that you are in a good situation or that you are being loved.

The key to understanding emotions is to learn to listen to your body. When you feel a strong emotion, take a moment to pause and ask yourself: "What is this emotion telling me?" The answer may be surprising, but it is often the truth.

Preventing golf injuries

By David M. Reardon, author of The Emotional Body

Golf is a popular sport, but it can also be a source of injury. Many golfers suffer from back pain, knee pain, and other injuries. The key to preventing golf injuries is to use proper technique and to listen to your body.

Women bone up on osteo

NEW YORK: Women need to take extra care to protect their bones, especially after menopause, when the risk of osteoporosis increases. A new study from the University of California, San Francisco, shows that women who take calcium supplements and engage in weight-bearing exercise can significantly reduce their risk of fractures. The study, published in the journal Archives of Internal Medicine, found that women who took calcium supplements and exercised regularly had a 30% lower risk of fractures compared to those who did not. The researchers also found that women who took calcium supplements and exercised regularly had a 20% lower risk of fractures compared to those who took calcium supplements but did not exercise.

Dr. David C. Finkelstein, a professor of medicine at the University of California, San Francisco, said that the study shows that women who take calcium supplements and exercise regularly can significantly reduce their risk of fractures. He said that the study also shows that women who take calcium supplements and exercise regularly have a 20% lower risk of fractures compared to those who take calcium supplements but do not exercise.
